PLAN A FORTY-BED TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL TO REPLACE PRESENT CAMP

Meeting to be Held Shortly at County Judge Fowler's Office With State Official and Architect—Health Officer to Confer With Milk Dealers—Seek Suitable Building for Isolation Hospital Here.

Kingston will shortly have a new forty-bed tuberculosis hospital to replace the present tuberculosis camp. That fact was brought out Tuesday evening at the meeting of the board of health when Dr. Daniel Connelly, health officer, called attention to a letter he had received from a man near the present camp who complained that some of the buildings had been moved over to within two feet of his property line.

Dr. Mary Gage-Day, a member of the board, said that she understood the situation at the camp. The two buildings, or shacks, had been located beneath the hill and in order to make it more convenient for the nursing staff had been removed to the brow of the hill. She said that it was only a temporary arrangement. There will be a meeting held shortly at County Judge Fowler's office with a state official and the architect to discuss plans for the new forty-bed tuberculosis hospital that will replace the present camp. She said that she believed work on the new hospital would be started this summer.

Conference With Milkmen.

Dr. Connelly will shortly call a meeting of the twenty-eight dealers retailing milk in Kingston to be held at the city hall when he will call their attention to the provisions of the milk code and tell them what the board of health expects them to do in order to furnish clean, pure milk to the residents of the city.

Seek Isolation Hospital.

Earlier in the year the board had discussed the question of an isolation hospital to be used in case of an outbreak of smallpox or similar disease. The city has no isolation hospital and, according to Dr. Connelly, no place where a patient afflicted with such a disease could be isolated and cared for.

The matter of renting a suitable house in the vicinity of the Benedictine Hospital had been discussed at last time and Tuesday evening Dr. Harold Clarke submitted a report showing that there were no available houses that the board could rent near that hospital.

The committee was continued with instructions to try and locate a suitable place that would be convenient to either the Kingston City or the Benedictine Hospital.

Pasteurized Milk For Ice Cream.

Dr. Connelly called attention to an amendment to the state milk code reading: Regulation 13-a—No ice cream shall be sold or offered for sale unless milk or cream used in the manufacture thereof—other than Grade A—shall have been pasteurized."

The communication was filed.

A Fresh Air Home.

Miss Alice Frey of Snyder avenue applied to the health board for permission to keep children at her home there. At present she has three small children from New York city with her and may have three more later. Dr. Connelly said he had investigated and found that conditions were favorable, and her request was granted, provided she continues to comply with the regulations of the board.

The reports of the officers, which will be found elsewhere, were read and adopted.

Scarlet Fever Mild.

Dr. Connelly said that ten cases of scarlet fever had been reported in Kingston during March, but that all of the cases were mild, and that ample precautions were being taken. He said that scarlet fever appeared to be general throughout the state.

The board audited a number of bills, and then adjourned.

CAPACITY CROWD FOR HIGH FALLS GIRL SCOUTS.

The dance given at B. W. S. Hall, High Falls, Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Girl Scouts of that village, was a huge success. The hall was packed to capacity, probably the largest crowd ever attending a dance in that locality. The Lopez orchestra, of which three men of High Falls are members, furnished the best of music. This orchestra came to High Falls as a special favor, the three Slater boys being former residents of that village. During the latter part of the evening after each dance the large crowd cheered the orchestra and gave them a great ovation. The musicians were as follows: Sam Weinbaum, Arch Slater, Fred Slater, Sr., Fred Slater, Jr., John Kuck, Jack Drab, Sid Frochlich and Jim Simpson.

Detour Around Alsen Slide

The mass of earth and rocks which blocks the state highway at Alsen, the result of the recent landslide, was being removed Tuesday by a steam shovel. District Engineer George H. Penfield said that it might take until Saturday to clear up the obstructing material. In the meantime a detour is necessary and the only road available is by way of Palenville. The old King's road and other detours are practically impassable on account of the mud and rough going.

Weekly News for Scout Masters

County Scout Executive Nesslage has begun the issuance of "The Weekly Round Table," a bulletin for scoutmasters, explaining in the first issue, just out, that the growth of the county organization to 30 troops makes it difficult for him to visit each troop as often as he desires.

Among the news for Scouts contained in the bulletin is the announcement of a school for buglers if enough Scouts respond, under the direction of Mr. Dunn, former Scout executive of Auburn, N. Y., free of charge.

An Ulster county year book of Scouting will be ready for distribution at the Scout round-up on June 13 and 14.

Plans are being made to form a Boy Scout Woman's Auxiliary, to be composed of mothers of Scouts.

Fire Alarm Will Ring Before Blaze Starts

Blaze Will be Mostly Light, But It Will Shine On Some Hot Bargains and, Cold Light Not Being Sold by the K. G. and E. Co., There'll Be Heat Anyway.

The curtain will be raised on one of the biggest shows that the city of Kingston ever has known at eight o'clock this evening, when three strokes on the city fire alarm system bells will formally open the annual Spring Opening Display of the retail stores of the entire city.

Tonight's show will be the biggest, brightest, most artistic and attractive which it is possible for the combined talent of the retail store owners, window drapers and sales forces to produce, and past experience has proved their ability to make Spring Opening Display second to no other city in the state.

The big show tonight will be marked by an absence of sales, for the stores will not be open for business—the Spring Opening Display will be simply for the purpose of furnishing the public with an opportunity of witnessing at one time one of the most elaborately designed exhibitions of beautiful store windows ever undertaken by any organized body of retail business men anywhere.

Not a store in any of the business communities of the entire city will be in darkness, but all will blaze with light, beauty and spring styles. Even the stores which handle everyday commodities find it possible to display goods, wares and merchandise that are especially in demand in the spring. Business houses handling goods whose character changes with the season find an opportunity to make a display of greater interest than at any other time of the year. The variety of goods displayed will cover a field as wide as the commercial commodities handled by the merchants. There will not be a dark spot in the entire city; every retail store will be illuminated.

Throughout the entire day, curtains have been drawn tight while the decorating experts of the various business houses have worked to produce effects commensurate with the Spring Opening Display. Until eight o'clock the store windows will remain curtained, in darkness, but with the signal to be sounded on the city fire alarm bells, curtains will be raised, lights will flash, and the public will be afforded a view of the most brilliant and beautiful exhibition of attractive goods which could possibly be gathered together in one city.

While the Spring Opening Display will prove particularly interesting to all women, who normally are the buyers for the household, every man and every child will find a delightful treat in the unusual exhibition. Everything in the line of wearing apparel, furnishings for the home, accessories for every part of the house or garden, will be displayed somewhere. And the necessary automobile will not be neglected in the Annual Spring Opening. Whatever the mind can conceive or the heart desire that can be bought will be exhibited in the stores where such goods are sold.

The "2-2-2" committee appointed by the new Kingston Merchants' Association—composed of two men from the uptown two from the downtown and two from the West Shore business sections—found enthusiasm everywhere prevalent in completing final arrangements for every merchant to take part in tonight's Spring Opening Display. The whirlwind campaign conducted Tuesday and today seldom has been equalled in favorable results by any other campaign which the city has undertaken. The merchants of every section of the entire city were waiting only for announcement of the general plans, the time for the Spring Opening Display to begin and other data to get busy, each with his individual display in order to make Kingston city a veritable wonderland of delight.

After tonight's Spring Opening Display, naturally the Spring Opening Days will follow on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and tonight's big show in all sections of the city will be worth traveling many miles to see.

DAWES COMMITTEE REPORTS PLAN BY WHICH GERMANY CAN BE RETURNED TO NORMAL CONDITIONS BY 1929

Long and Intricate Proposals Involve Creation of New Bank of $100,000,000 Capitalization, $200,000,000 in Money Backed by Railroads and Reparations Payments of 250,000,000 Gold Marks in 1925-6.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, April 9.—The world's greatest program for the financial restoration of temporarily bankrupt nation—the German republic—as outlined in a report presented to the inter-allied reparations commission today by the international committee of reparations experts headed by General Charles Gates Dawes of Chicago.

The plan recommends the creation of a new bank of issue, capitalized at $400,000,000 gold marks (approximately $100,000,000), to act as the Allies chief fiscal agent in Germany, an external loan to assist in the balancing of the budget and the restoration of confidence in Germany's financial and economic life, issuance of 2,000,000,000 gold marks preferred shares by the German railways to be sold to the public, an elaborate and detailed plan for balancing the German budget so that Germany can resume reparations payments as soon as the transition period gets fully underway.

The committee proposed that the first external loan for Germany should be 800,000,000 gold marks or approximately $200,000,000 the money to be applied specifically to creating the bank of issue and stabilizing currency. None of it would be applied directly upon reparations payments. Proceeds of the loan would be deposited in the bank of issue. Indirectly part of the loan would be used to continue deliveries in kind, which will not be interrupted during the transition period.

The committee pointed out that the success of the whole plan depends upon three main factors:

1. Limitation of payments for all purposes to 1,000,000,000 gold marks, of which at least 800,000,000 must be spent in Germany.

2. Cooperation between the Allies and Germany in securing political conditions which will incline outside investors favorably towards Germany's external loan.

3. An external loan for the purposes mentioned.

The committee pointed out that the first loan must be secured in such a way as to give investors absolute protection so that subsequent loans would not be jeopardized.

The value of German railways was placed at 26,000,000,000 gold marks. It was suggested that a joint stock company be organized to handle their finances. It is not the intention of the plan, the report said, to deprive Germany of the administration of her railway system. So long as the proposed financial returns are forthcoming from the roads there will be no interference in their management by the allies.

In addition to 2,000,000,000 gold marks preferred stock issued upon the roads, it is proposed to issue 11,000,000,000 gold marks first mortgage five per cent bonds and a one per cent sinking fund. The remaining 13,000,000,000 gold marks of rail value will be converted into common stock. The proceeds from the sale of all the common stock and from 500,000,000 gold marks of preferred stock goes to the German government.

According to the report the German government is technically in a strong financial position. In this connection, it said:

"If Germany had sustained the burden of her own debt as the Allies have done and not obliterated it through inflation, she would have had to raise from 4,500,000,000 to 5,000,000,000 gold marks per annum in addition to her domestic expenditures."

The report pointed out an inequality of taxation in Germany and suggested a modified monopoly of the tobacco industry. It asserted that the wealthy in Germany escaped with far less than their share of the national tax burden. Suggestion was made that the income tax be reorganized in order to increase the return from the rich.

It is also suggested that the federal government re-organize its system of subsidies to the component parts of the republic so that the financial strain upon the national treasury would be lightened.

The committee believes that by the end of the fiscal year of 1928-29, the financial and economic situation in Germany will have returned to normal and that in this and subsequent years the budget should contain a sum of 1,250,000,000 gold marks for application upon the reparation debt. The total sum provided from the ordinary budget resources would be the standard payment of 1,200,000,000 gold marks, plus the additional sum compiled upon the growing prosperity of Germany beginning in 1930.

It was suggested that a general mortgage of not less than 5,000,000,000 gold marks be placed upon German industry. First mortgage bonds paying 5 per cent would be issued and a one per cent sinking fund created. This sum is less than the total debt of German industry before the war. It was pointed out in this connection that industry had benefited greatly through inflation of currency which enabled them to pay debts with depreciated money.

First year—from foreign loan and part interest (200,000,000 gold marks) on rail bonds, 1,000,000,000 gold marks.

Second year—from interest on rail bonds, (including 130,000,000 gold marks from first year) and interest upon industrial debentures and and budget contribution, including sale of railway shares, 1,200,000,000 gold marks.

Third year, (transition period) from interest upon rail bonds and industrial debentures from transport tax and from budget, 1,200,000,000 gold marks, subject to contingent addition or reduction not exceeding 250,000,000 gold marks.

Fourth year—from interest upon rail bonds and industrial debentures, from transport tax and from budget, 1,750,000,000 gold marks, subject to third year contingencies.

Fifth year (standard year) 2,500,000,000 gold marks.

Suggestions were made for greater returns from agricultural properties either by increase valorization tax or a specific lien.

The committee pointed out that payments must be made to the Allied and Associated powers, including the United States, not only for reparation proper, but for special items contained in the treaty of Versailles.

A special account will be kept in the bank of issue for these payments aside from direct reparation.

Recommendation was made that a limit of 5,000,000,000 gold marks be placed upon all funds accumulating in the hands of reparations creditors in Germany.

An elaborate control system is proposed. There will be a bank commissioner, a railway commissioner, a commissioner of controlled revenues, an agent-general for reparations payments, a trustee to administer rail and industrial bonds and numerous sub-commissioners.

The committee proposes taxes on customs, alcohol, beer, tobacco and sugar be placed under control of the creditor nations. It suggested that during the fiscal year of 1925-26 deliveries in kind and costs of the armies of occupation in Germany should be financed up to a total of 1,220,000,000 gold marks raised in Germany itself.

As to the currency situation the report says that while the total circulation is enormous in nominal values, when reduced to its equivalent in gold money it is equivalent to only something over 3,000,000,000 gold marks, half as much as was in circulation at the outbreak of the war.

The committee states that, according to a table prepared by the German government "there is considerable room for increase in taxation" aside from income taxation.

Attached to the report is a lengthy annex giving the intricate details of the component parts of the Dawes plan.

It was the double task of the committee to point the way to stabilization of German currency and the balancing of the budget. It was a strictly "businessmen's report," ignoring political questions and avoiding military matters, including occupation of the Ruhr, as outside the jurisdiction of the committee.

After outlining various phases of the plan the report turned to reparations payments (peace treaty charges), saying:

"We therefore recommend that in the fiscal year 1925-26 Germany should be required to meet peace treaty charges out of her budget to the extent of 250,000,000 gold marks. If (contrary to our expectations), the budgets fail to realize 500,000,000 gold marks from the sale of (railway) preference shares, we consider that any resultant deficit could be met by an internal loan. The proceeds of the transport tax should therefore not figure in the revenue side of the budget except to the extent to which they exceed 24,000,000 gold marks in 1925-26 and 200,000,000 gold marks in subsequent years."

Further on, in the section devoted to conclusions, the report said:

"We have taken into account the probable yield of her (Germany's) several taxes and her taxable capacity as a whole and the probable changes in expenditure under these improving conditions, and after making full allowance for error, we have reached definite conclusions as to the sums which can be fixed for peace treaty charges without endangering the stability of the budget. These results we have considered in relation to the maximum probable rate at which the national income can be expected to grow from its present point and the maximum proportion of that growth which can successfully be absorbed in taxation.

"We draw the conclusion that, allowance being made for some inevitable growth in expenditure, the budgets for the three subsequent years can safely provide for the following maximum sums:

"Nineteen twenty-six-twenty seven

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

MARY DYER

Was the wife of William Dyer who removed from Massachusetts to Rhode Island in 1638. Having been sentenced to execution for rebellious sedition and obtruding herself after banishment upon pain of death. She was reprieved at the request of her son, on the condition that she departed in 48 hours and did not return. She returned and was executed June 1st, 1660. She was a Quakeress, and, in the estimation of her friends, a Martyr.

TOWER OF LONDON

The building of the Tower of London was commenced in 1078 by William the Conquerer, and completed by his son in 1098. This great structure was the old white tower, which was later rebuilt, and many other buildings added to it. The Tower Hill was long the scene of executions, the last being that of Lord Lovatt, who was beheaded 177 years ago today, April 9, 1747, for taking part in the Jacobite Rebellion, which was crushed at Culloden. This was the last execution at the famous tower until Karl Hans Lody was shot there in November, 1914, as a spy. Among those who died at Tower Hill were King Henry VI, in 1471, King Edward V, in 1845, and Sir Thomas Overbury, in 1613.

NOME.

The first appearance of Nome in the pages of history was in a chart published by the British Admiralty in 1849, in which Cape Nome was mapped but the famous Alaskan City of that name did not spring up till the discovery of gold in that region in June, 1898. Nome will celebrate its 23d birthday today, for it was incorporated as a town April 9, 1901, with a population of 15,000, but in 1910 it had dropped to 2,600. Its history has been as that of other towns where the excitement over the discovery of gold took place, it went up like a rocket and came down like a stick.

The present inhabitants represent the survival of the fittest, or the most fortunate. The high cost of living at Nome during the days of the gold rush made it essential for the prospectors to make an immediate "strike" or get out, and in 1900 Congress had to vote relief to the miners of the district.

My Hero.

Of all the heroes laurel-crowned,
The one I most admire,
Is he who rises ere the dawn
To light the kitchen fire.

He may be ugly as a goat,
Unskilled with tongue or pen;
He may have flinges on his cuffs,
But he's a prince of men.

Most heroes have one glorious deed,
By which they won their praise;
My hero goes forth every morn,
Through his precarious maze.

Gooseflesh he braves and carpet tacks,
Doors standing half ajar,
And countless chairs to bark his shins,
And leave their battle scar.

And so I sing my hero's praise,
And strike the exultant lyre,
For him who rises every morn,
To light the kitchen fire.

HOURS OF COLLECTION NOT ON MAIL BOXES

Editor, The Freeman:

The post office is a vehicle universally used by commerce, literature and lovers, and as such is found quite reliable, but all persons are interested to know as to the hour when their letters will be started on their journeys so as to be certain approximately of the time of delivery at their destinations.

Many months have elapsed since the city letter boxes were painted an aesthetic color approaching the verdant tint of nature, but so remotely as to be very difficult to locate on a lark night. But with this accomplishment the apparent effort of the authorities has exhausted itself. The anxious pursuer after knowledge finds himself unable to obtain any guidance as to when his important document will be sped upon its way and he can only place his confidence upon some conscientious mail carrier wandering 'round in that direction before many ages shall have elapsed.

However, as new brooms are said to expedite the removal of red tape, let us live in hope that shortly we may see cards attached to all the boxes giving the hours of collection and then our present uncertain hopes shall be replaced by joyful confidence.

On Every Chandler Without Extra Cost

The Traffic Transmission

AT the automobile shows many manufacturers have exhibited cars on which were offered certain new developments involving brakes, tires, etc.

Some were accepted as undoubted improvements. Others continue to be the subject of sharp controversy.

In many cases these improvements were offered as "optional". That is, you paid extra to obtain them. In others, it was found necessary to cover their additional cost with an advance in list price.

But the biggest, most important, most fundamental advance of all was offered on only one car, as an integral part of that car—and at no extra cost to the purchaser. This was the Traffic Transmission.

Embodying a totally new principle, it represents the solution of the gear shifting problem. There is nothing new to learn. You move the gear lever and clutch exactly as before. But the results are amazing.

You cannot clash gears. You cannot fail in any attempted speed change, even when racing down hill.

The speed and surety with which you change to second gear gives you a positive brake on the steepest grades. You can make instant use of the motor's equalized braking power to stop short without skidding.

With no fumbling to change gears, you park with ease and dispatch.

Small wonder that the Chandler is nationally regarded as the easiest and safest of all cars to handle! It is the only car which combines the Traffic Transmission with the

Multiple Bracelet Sets New Fashion

The old order changeth—even in jewelry, where from time immemorial every conceivable stone could be worn in almost any manner. Today many of the jewelry fashions of earlier years have joined the oblivion of the past, and are quite as demode as the mid-Victorian chapeau, according to a writer in the New York Tribune.

Few women, for example, are wearing headdresses now, either jeweled or fantasy. Diadems and coronets have gone out of fashion. They are not in accord with the shingled bob or the sleek flat coiffure of the day. One never sees a jeweled dog collar now, except perhaps upon an English dowager, into whose toilette the present-day fashions never enter.

Flat jewels, set in gold or platinum, have also lost some of their ancient glamour. The modern woman prefers to wear her precious baubles in the form of beads strung on fine chains of platinum with circlets of brilliants mingling with the sparkling balls of fire and color. Sometimes a long string of faceted emeralds is worn between two matching strips of pearls. Again it is a chain of emeralds and brilliants, cut in graduated sizes and culminating with a marvelously jewelled tassel ornament.

A score of emeralds and diamond bracelets will often be worn on one arm. Sometimes the note of color is given by a pair of huge earrings—sometimes it is a large pendant or a brooch as big as one's hand that blazes from the shoulder or the front of the corsage.

Another jewelry fashion of the moment is the wearing of multiple bracelets in shaded tones to match the dress, or to accentuate some note of color in the fabric or trimming. These highly colored ombre bracelets are made of enameled metal. Developed in rainbow tones or in various shades of one color, they are worn in groups of dozens and placed on one arm, which they entirely cover from wrist to elbow.

Organdie and Lace for This Collar-Cuff Set

Organdie and lace are combined in winsome manner to make this simple but charming collar and cuff set, which is liked by the majority of women.

Inset Vest Is Shown in Sweater Models

As almost every dress, including those intended for afternoon wear, has some suggestion of the inset vest it is not surprising that we find the same idea in the sweater. A suit or dress, whichever one may chose to call it, is made of fine white jersey, the slipon blouse pulled over the plaited skirt is embroidered in brown and yellow, a large Egyptian motif used in the center of the shirt bosom vest is doubly noticeable bordered with a wide band of brown, with the design picked out in white and yellow. A narrow edge of the brown binds the skirt and the scarf has a wide border of the embroidery.

Dyed Lace Is Liked for Afternoon Gowns

There is a craze for dyed lace. This forms an important part of the self-tones and semi-tones in many of the new models for softer gowns, the handsome afternoon and informal dinner gowns particularly. The laces are to be had in every possible color and shade, wide or narrow, the preference being for Spanish laces, some in the most lovely yellows, from pale gold to orange; some in violet, blue, rose and the lighter shades of brown, beige, champagne, cafe-au-lait, gray, taupe and smoke.

One of the most attractive tea gowns seen this season was made of light brown chiffon and wide lace, lighter in color, all over corn-colored satin, with touches of dull gilt.

Of Cloudy Amber

Perfectly enormous beads of Chinese cloudy amber form a barbaric chain. The beads are irregular in shape, and except for their range in color from ruby to lemon look like chunks of wood.

Flesh satin makes up an attractive pair of the newest evening slippers, to be worn with nude hose.

NOW IS THE TIME

Republicans who are anxious for party success, and all good Republicans are, should not wait until November before doing that which they can do now to accomplish victory in the nation and state this fall. Nothing succeeds like success, but success does not come along under its own momentum. Work is necessary under any and all circumstances, and if loyal Republicans will get busy early there is no doubt that there will be a Republican continued in the White House in Washington and a Republican put in the Executive Chamber and Executive Mansion at Albany. But the time to start is now.

The Teapot Dome controversy unquestionably created more or less mental disturbance, and with Democratic manipulation it was made to appear for a while as if Republicans were answerable. After the smoke had cleared away it was possible to determine what was what, and that while individuals may have been answerable for one thing or another the Republican party had nothing for which it must apologize. In one sense the discussions at Washington were helpful. It was proved by the hearings that there was one man, President Coolidge, who could stand the test and who was not to be swayed from his duty by clamour. All that has been said or done has not lessened the estimation the people have for him. As a matter of fact, he has enlarged in the minds of the people who think.

There is work, however, for Republicans to do. Democrats all over the country will try to make capital of the oil disclosures, and it is the duty of Republicans in every section to refute insupportable accusations that will be made by the Democrats. A little attention to the facts that have been developed will equip any Republican with information sufficient to stop any Democrat from successfully spreading misinformation as to the oil leases or conduct of the office of the attorney general.

Seven months will elapse before election day and if county chairmen, state committeemen and local leaders begin their work now there is no doubt as to the outcome in November. There is nothing like a good start, and with that the state should be put back in the Republican column, where it belongs, and President Coolidge kept in the White House, where he is needed. There is a lot of work to do but it can be done successfully if delays are avoided. It can be truthfully said that "now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party." They are needed, but with their help Republican victory in state and nation is assured.

CHILD LABOR REGULATION.

Wonder is expressed that, apart from interested commercialism, there should be any opposition to Federal regulation of child labor. Perhaps there will not be any to speak of were not constitutional amendment called for. Great numbers of the people have grown restive under Federal laws buttressed rock-ribbed and rendered as unchangeable as the statutes of the Medes and Persians by previous constitutional amendments. They want laws that can be changed or modified need and are loath to surrender the people's right to order such change or modification, well knowing that to vote a constitutional amendment under our system practically amounts to such surrender, and that now any proposition to modify a law buttressed by a constitutional amendment is met with the cry of "treason to the constitution."

Having offered this explanation of the opposition to a constitutional amendment regulating child labor, it remains to be said that greater uniformity in child labor restriction throughout the country is highly desirable. It seems that nine states have no laws prohibiting children under 14 years of age from working full hours in factories and mines; that 24 states having such laws weaken them by permitting exceptions under local authority; that 35 states permit children to begin work without a common school education, and that 19 states pay no attention to physical condition of children, permitting weaklings to work beyond their strength. It is asserted, moreover that from 11 to 14 states permit children to work unlimited hours day or night. If such indeed are the conditions, it is obvious that a multitude of little victims are in need of rescue.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

AN UNUSUAL CAUSE OF HIP PAIN.

A young woman consulted her physician regarding a pain in the right hip.

There seemed to be no source of infection anywhere.

The teeth, tonsils and intestine were all in good condition.

There did not seem to be a real history of an injury and yet that was left for the physician to suggest.

However he noticed that the right hip stood out further from the body than the left.

Now this is not uncommon as many young people stand on the leg so much that the hip on that side stands out, and the shoulder of the same side is lowered an inch or two to compensate it.

This then was the cause of the pain.

Now many people have one leg longer than the other and seem to get along without any trouble.

But in this particular case, the young lady was athletically inclined, and stated that after skating or tennis she seemed to feel the pain more intensely.

Thus the lengthened stride in skating or tennis was sufficient to give a little strain on the joint between the hip bone and the lower end of spine.

This joint as mentioned before can be strained or sprained just as any other joint in the body.

This did away with the large wooden heel that would have been too conspicious.

Albany, April 9.—Residents of Olive township in Ulster county will be served with electricity for light, heat and power under an order by the public service commission today authorizing the Kingston, N. The company plans to give service to about 62 residents in Olive township who have no present means of securing electricity for light heat and power purposes. It is estimated that the cost of the extension of the power company's line will be about $15,000.

POULTRY

EGGS FROM PULLETS POOR FOR HATCHING

Pullets never should be used as breeders unless they are early hatched and handled under the most favorable conditions, says Noel Hall, extension specialist of the Missouri state poultry experiment station, at Mountain Grove, Mo.

First, the pullets should be early hatched. It is necessary for the fowls to be mature for the best results.

Second, they must have been raised properly—they must be well developed. Eight-months-old pullets that have been fed and housed properly are better than twelve-months pullets handled under unfavorable conditions.

Third, the pullet should be brought into lay early in the fall and winter and allowed a rest before breeding season. This allows them to be in good physical condition for the production of hatching eggs.

Fourth, a good ration should be fed throughout the winter, but the pullets should not be forced for production. The breeding ration should contain about three-fourths as much protein as the laying ration.

Fifth, the pullets used as breeders should be supplied an abundance of green food. It will pay to use alfalfa meal or sprouted oats when other green feed is not available.

We are prone to attempt two businesses in one. Commercial egg production and good hatching eggs seldom come from the same flock at the same time. Best results are secured from the flock handled especially for one or the other.

Pullets to be used in the breeding pens next spring should be culled carefully and placed in separate quarters. Then they should be fed on a breeding ration and not forced for production.

Breeding from pullets is to be discouraged. It is generally conceded that the best results are obtained from hens that have completed one laying year. However, with special care, good results can be secured from well-developed, vigorous pullets if they are not forced for production.

Substitutes for Worms and Bugs During Winter

In order to maintain good egg production during the winter months the flock owner or attendant must reproduce as nearly as possible those conditions which exist at the season of heavy egg production, say the Nebraska Agricultural college poultrymen. Because of the abundance of bugs and worms during the spring months, and the entire absence of them now it is absolutely essential that some substitute for them be provided. Such substitutes are known as "animal feeds" and include meat scraps, tankage, and ground bone. This dry mash mixture should contain 15 to 20 per cent of meat scraps or high-grade tankage. If skim milk or buttermilk is available the percentage of other animal feeds may be decreased somewhat.

Hens With Cold Feet Do Not Produce Many Eggs

With eggs bringing exceptional prices the object of the poultryman is to get his hens to lay the largest possible number of eggs at a minimum of expense, and one way to gain this end is to keep the feet of hens warm, says A. C. Smith, head of the poultry division at University Farm at St. Paul. "Hens with cold feet do not lay," adds Mr. Smith. "Frozen ground snow and mud make cold feet. A dry floor in the hen house with from four to eight inches of straw in which the hens may constantly scratch will not only keep the hens feet warm but will help to insure good health, which is absolutely essential to egg production."

Eggs for Hatching Need Most Careful Attention

Under average conditions it is not desirable to keep eggs that are to be used for hatching longer than ten days. Satisfactory hatches may be obtained after keeping them over three weeks if they are carefully turned and kept at a temperature of about 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Experiments show that the longer the eggs are kept the lower will be the percentage of chicks.

The eggs should be turned once a day. Eggs shipped from a distance should be carefully unpacked and left in a quiet place 24 hours before being placed under hens.—E. J. Peterson, North Dakota Agricultural College.

Sixty Per Cent Hatch Is Considered About Right

If you buy eggs for hatching, don't look for 90 or 100 per cent hatches. Breeders are, as a class, conscientious, and will sell what they believe to be fertile eggs, from good stock. But even from the healthiest of fowls and of the highest quality, there will be chicks off-colored and defective in some points. A 60 per cent hatch is good, and if half of these prove good birds in color and shape it will be a good hatch.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MRS. OTTER

"I'm not nearly so fond of traveling as Mr. Otter is," Mrs. Otter said.

"Mr. Otter roams and travels all the time. He goes from one place to another—sometimes he will spend a week or two in a place, but then he feels like being off again, and even though he comes back from time to time he loves to explore and to adventure.

"The Beaver family love to own the same house for years and years. They build it themselves and they are great home lovers.

"But a nice cosy den under a rock or an old tree will do for us.

"We like to be near the water—not because the view is better but because fish live in water and we love to eat fish!

"Then, too, we love to swim and to live and to play. We older ones do not grow up so that we forget how to play.

"To me it is dreadful to forget how to play."

Now Mrs. Otter had two fine Otter children.

And when the children heard their mother say that she would not forget how to play they were very happy.

"You will play with us?" they asked her.

"Oh, yes," Mother Otter said, "we will slide down hill together and have splendid parties. Each spring you will have two or four more little brothers or sisters—or some of each, if that is the correct way of speaking.

"But I will not forget my older children even when the babies arrive.

"I will not pet them and forget all about you. We will all be together—a happy family party.

"A mother otter does not think her children should be allowed to wander about by themselves until they are at least two years old.

Mrs. Otter Had Two Fine Otter Children.

"It takes two years for a child to be grown up and able to look after himself.

"I've heard that some mothers think that a two-year-old child is not able to adventure about by himself.

"But otters at two years of age are very clever and grown up.

"Oh, otters are so beautiful. No animal has any finer fur. An otter's broad, stubby nose is so handsome, his eyes so keen and bright and his strong little legs so sturdy and fine.

"An otter has dainty little feet and a fine long body and an otter can do things so quickly.

"Not only can an otter play and dive and slide down hill and catch fish, but he can do all these things so well!

"He can catch fish which move so fast—oh, yes, an otter is quick and spry.

"Our fur is at its best in the fall and winter and then is the time to have our fur at its best. Everyone thinks more about furs in the winter than at any time, and so does the otter, too.

"Ah, what soft, brown, silky fur you will have by next winter," said Mother Otter.

"But I hope," she added, "that it will only be appreciated by me and not by people.

"Yes, I wish to admire it—I do not care for the admiration of others.

"That I do not care about at all."

Mother Otter drew close to her children.

"Little otters," she said, "do not think that you must spend all your lives in trying to be wise. Learn to be quick.

"And quickness will be wisdom for you. Be quick when you fish, and do everything in the same way.

"You will not have to study books as some children must do, for Otter lessons are all to be held out-of-doors, on the banks of rivers, and in rivers.

"You must learn how to swim under water. That is an important Otter lesson, but always after lessons there will be play-time and Mother Otter will join in the fun."

Johnny's Watch

Johnny's aunt gave him a watch for his birthday, and the boy's satisfaction was unbounded. A couple of weeks later he remarked that the watch wasn't keeping time.

"It must be wound every night before you go to bed," his aunt told him.

"Oh, I never knew that," said the boy. "Now I s'pose I've just gone and ruined it."

"Why, when have you been winding it?"

"The first thing every morning," answered the boy sorrowfully.—Lippincott's.

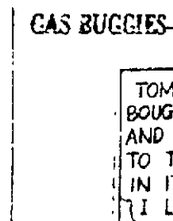
JUST A FEW GOOD THINGS

Even in a family where ginger bread is a favorite there will be leftovers



Try steaming it and serving a hot sauce with it for dessert some busy day when there is little time for preparing a more elaborate one. Then another time try making the following:

Gingerbread Custard.—Scald a pint of milk, beat the yolks of two eggs and add one fourth of a cupful of sugar; add the milk gradually to the sugar and egg and pour this over gingerbread crumbs (a cupful or more) in a baking dish. Set in a pan of hot water in the oven and bake until the eggs are set. Cover with a meringue prepared from the egg whites and a few marshmallows and brown in the oven.

Delicious Muffins.—Pour two and one-half cupfuls of milk over three cupfuls of bread crumbs, let stand until soft, then beat with an egg beater; add the yolks of three eggs, one cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt; beat well and add one tablespoonful of melted butter and fold in the stiffly-beaten white of the eggs. Bake in buttered muffin tins about twenty minutes.

Lazy Daisy Cake.—Into a measuring cup drop the whites of two eggs, fill the cup to one half with softened butter, not melted, add milk to fill the cup. Now add one cupful of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted with the flour three times, add a bit of salt and beat hard with a Dover egg beater for several minutes. Bake in a loaf, ice with powdered sugar, one teaspoonful of lemon extract and a tablespoonful of milk; beat until creamy. This makes a tender and delicious white cake.

Add a half-cupful of black walnut meats to the custard pie. The nuts will rise, and form a delicious crust over the top of the pie when baked. Chop the nuts rather coarsely; do not put through the meat grinder as it crushes them and makes them pasty.

Isn't This Pleasant News For Every Woman?

One of the most admirable characteristics of the American Woman is her ready acceptance of every improvement pertaining to the welfare of her home and family.

Tell her a piece of news and her first expression is "I never knew that before—your suggestion is good—I will follow it."

And it is just this constant desire for improved and economical cooking methods that has made Mazola so popular for SHORTENING—and why it has taken the place of butter in so many homes.

It is the experience of thousands of women that Mazola shortens cake so that it is better grained, light as a feather—without crumbling.

In richness, a Mazola-made cake is equal to one made with butter, yet without your having a feeling, after eating, that it's "too rich."

And, not only does Mazola cost less—but you use less. Mazola contains no moisture— so you use ¼ to ⅓ less than the amount specified for butter.

There is no particular "art" about using Mazola for making any kind of a cake—with any recipe. Merely use ¼ to ⅓ less Mazola than you would use butter.

The same applies for making pie crust—for which Mazola has a national reputation. Just follow your recipe—and use less.

When you think of shortening—think of Mazola. Use it once and you will never go back to using butter or lard.

PLEASE DON'T FORGET

My Rosy Skin

How I clean it—how I preserve it

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My skin is the marvel of millions. Even softer and more rosy than 40 years ago. Yet mine is a grandmother's age.

Mine has been no easy life. I have lived in the limelight. I served France five years in the rigors of the war. Yet countless young girls envy my complexion. I can easily pass for 19.

France gave me the methods I employ. Now, in gratitude, I am supplying them to others. They multiplied my beauty, gave me perennial youth. Now I hope to bring to millions the benefits I got.

How I keep clean

The first step to beauty is a clean skin—a skin that is clean to the depths. Lucie Lantelme, a famous Parisian beauty, taught me how to get it.

The method is a liquid cleanser. I call it my Facial Youth. It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. So it cannot grow hair on the face. It cannot assimilate in any way with the skin. But it penetrates every pore. When I wipe it off, the dirt and grime, all that clogs the skin comes with it.

You may think you clean your skin without it, but you don't. Apply Facial Youth to what you call a clean skin and see the extra dirt you get. That is what causes blackheads and blemishes.

I cover my body with Facial Youth before bathing. Thus I remove three times the refuse I remove without it.

Nothing to compare

My Facial Youth is the greatest cleansing formula science has created. The greatest beauty experts now employ it. Some supply it to others, but at four times my price.

I bring it to you at a modest price, and I urge you to employ it. You will find nothing to approach it. A fine complexion is impossible unless the skin is clean.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Facial Youth is now supplied by all druggists and toilet counters at 75 cents per bottle. Also my Youth Cream—my fruity cold cream. Also my White Youth Clay—the last word in facial clay. Also my Hair Youth, which brought my luxuriant hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

Take this first step to beauty now. Clean the skin with my Facial Youth. The immediate results will amaze you. Then, if you wish my other aids, they are at your call. Edna Wallace Hopper, 530 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Bootlegging Chief Industry Of This State, Says Cobb

By J. V. CLARKE

Bootlegging is New York State's greatest business and New York City is its center, according to Irvin S. Cobb whose humorous "New York Guyed" has just been published. Perhaps this accounts for the restless disposition which the famous writer ascribes to the inhabitants of New York City: "So far as I know, the only permanent resident of the city is General U. S. Grant," says Cobb.

"New York Guyed" is one of a series called "Cobb's America Guyed Books," of which six, dealing respectively and humorously with New York, North Carolina, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine and Indiana, have just been published. The author knows our little failings and hurls them at us—with a broad grin. In fairness we must say he makes as much as possible of our microscopic virtues—also with a broad grin.

As a sportsman and lover of wild life, Cobb pictures the invasion of New York State's wild places by New York City and deplores the fact that the squirrels in the Catskills have taken to chattering with an East Side accent.

However, he draws a sharp line of demarcation between New York City and New York State. For the state he has nothing except praise: "For the defense it should be stated, though, that not even New York City can spoil New York State. ...I contend that there is no state that presents a finer diversity or more generous array of beauty spots than New York."

Yet there is not one drop of venom in Cobb's criticism of the City. Impatiently he shakes his jovial bulk at us, like a bear annoyed by a swarm of bees, but laughter breaks through his annoyance and he guys us with huge glee. In every one of "Cobb's America Guyed Books,' he touches faults hilariously and brings a tenderly humorous appreciation to the beauties of each state and the virtues of its citizens.

Irvin S. Cobb, famous humorist, whose "New York Guyed" has just been published.

There is in "New York Guyed" regret for the old days of Cobb's arrival in the city: "When, right on Broadway, for a period of weeks, Eliza each night crossed on the ice, pursued by Jake and Lee. Or, maybe it was by Klaw and Erlanger."

But he does not waste tears on the past. He rocks with laughter at the present and dismisses better days with: "But what's the use of digging up sad and harrowing recollections of those ancient times before the Volstead Act began making America safe for hypocrisy."

FIND SITE OF IDAHO'S FIRST TRADING POST

Blind Indian Leads Way to Old Settlement.

Missoula, Mont.—The site of a trading post which, 500 miles inland from the Pacific ocean, was founded in 1807, at virtually the same time that John Jacob Astor was establishing his post at the mouth of the Columbia river, has been found by Duncan McDonald of Dixon, Mont., son of an early Hudson's Bay company factor. A blind Indian was McDonald's guide.

A heap of stones and ashes on the shore of Lake Pen d'Oreille in northern Idaho is all that is left of the log barricades and cabins built by David Thompson in 1807.

Thompson was an employee of the Hudson's Bay company in eastern Canada when Astor determined to send his expedition by boat around Cape Horn. Offered employment by Astor, Thompson decided instead to head an expedition of his own to cross the continent and establish a post at the mouth of the Columbia before Astor's could round the Horn.

But Thompson's expedition was forced by hostile Indians to camp for a winter north of what is now the city of Spokane, and the Thompson party arrived at the mouth of the Columbia to find Astor's men building their cabins.

Thompson returned to the Rocky mountain region and built his fur-trading posts on Lake Pen d'Oreille, in what has become northern Idaho, on Flathead lake, in what is now western Montana, and near the present site of the city of Missoula.

The recent expedition, which found the remains of the Lake Pen d'Oreille post, designated by Thompson in his diaries as "Kullyspell house," was led by McDonald, accompanied by the blind Indian from the Flathead reservation known as Old Aleck, who, in his boyhood, had seen standing the old stone chimney of Kullyspell house.

McDonald said the principal importance attaching to the discovery was that it fixed the spot of Idaho's first trading post.

Temple of Golden Calf Is Found by Explorers

Philadelphia.—The temple of the golden calf, mentioned in the Old Testament, has been found by the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania museum and the British museum near Ur of the Chaldees, Dr. George B. Gordon, director of the university museum believes. He expressed the belief that Nebuchadnezzar's temple, which the expedition has uncovered, is identical with the golden calf temple.

The Bible story of this temple, in the Book of Daniel, relates how three Israelite brothers, refusing to worship the golden image of a calf, erected by King Nebuchadnezzar, were cast into a fiery furnace, but emerged unharmed. From photographs of the excavated temple and other data recently received from the expedition, Doctor Gordon deduces that this temple is the one mentioned in the Bible.

Among the pictures are some which Doctor Gordon believes show drain pipes which were used to carry off the blood of animals sacrificed before the golden image.

Record Prices Paid for Old Coins in New York

New York.—Record prices for United States coins were obtained recently at a sale that yielded $6,768 for 108 items in the galleries of the American Art association for the account of the estate of a city collector. Elmer Sears paid $140 for a 1797 eagle with four stars on the right, $110 for 11 gold dollars from the Dahlonega mint from 1849 to 1860 and $108 for proof sets coined in 1844.

Henry Chapman gave $280 for an eagle, 1798 stamped over 1797; $145 for a half-eagle of 1833, $120 for a perfect proof of the rare gold dollar of 1855, $125 for a 1794 silver dollar, $200 and $210 for two brilliant proofs of 1838 silver dollars with flying eagle. A half-eagle of 1797 with 16 stars was sold to Cuttag Bros. for $470.

Egyptian Says King Tut Died From Tuberculosis

New York.—This piece of news is more than 3,000 years old, but it's new stuff around here.

Tutankhamen, now being dug up at Luxor, died of consumption.

Instead of being a robust, hairy-chested, caveman sort of person, he was a frail, stoop-shouldered and sickly youth, according to Bishara Nahas, Egyptian author, who had an inside view of Tut's tomb and is here lecturing about it.

It is claimed this is the longest underground telephone line in the world.

TALK OF NEW HATS AS EASTER APPROACHES

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

After several seasons of utter dejection, hat brims are beginning to turn up instead of down. What a refreshing change it is, for convenient as the cloche may be, one wearies even of a good thing.

Just now milliners are struggling to retain most of its endearing features but at the same time are experimenting with the brim of the cloche. In other words, hats continue to be close fitting but are more inclined to off-the-face effects, the modified tricorne being a popular conception of the new line. Brims continue to be narrowed to almost nothing at the back and have acquired an irregularity which, while not new, seems so.

It is several seasons since fashion has approved unbalanced lines. And one must admit that it adds interest to the prospect of shopping for a new hat to know that one is not confined to bell and mushroom shapes but can be lured by a sailor or intrigued by a tricorne without being in danger of overstepping any restrictions placed upon our heads. Crowns continue to be rather high and the base of much of the trimming.

Belting ribbon continues to be of millinery importance and interesting little feather novelties find themselves responsible for a note of color at the side or front of a hat. Red underbrim facings which show a cording of red at the brim edge or even more are another timely item for while black hats lead by a large majority in more exalted circles, a touch of color is not amiss.

Among the feathers used one must not overlook ostrich that is made into bands sometimes bowed at the side and into all manner of flat leaf and other effects to be appliqued on the hat.

The most important use for ostrich is in boa form, there being a concerted effort on the part of the ostrich industry to reestablish the ostrich boa, this ambitious achievement being fostered by the knowledge that things which are for adornment of one's neck are of vital style interest just now. Devotees of the ostrich boa argue that it is another form of neckpiece; its chances are equally good with that of all sorts and conditions of scarfs.

Drug Probe Stopped, Ex-Warden Swears.

T. E. DYCHE. INT.

T. Ed. Dyche, former Warden of the Federal Prison in Atlanta, Ga., is the witness who swore before the Senate Committee investigating the Department of Justice that Heber Votaw, Superintendent of Federal Prisons and brother-in-law of the late President Harding, ordered him to stop an investigation into the source of supply of drugs that were being smuggled in to prisoners.

Old French Wedding Custom Is Revived

An odd old custom was revived last October in the Flemish village of Comines, tucked away in the north of France.

About 1454 the Seigneur Jean de Comines, having been imprisoned after the good old custom by a neighboring prince, managed to reveal his whereabouts by throwing the wooden utensils given him for table use out of the dungeon where he was confined.

When his faithful subjects came to rescue him, he established a fair at which the ceremonial of throwing these "louches"—as the country people still call them—among the crowd was always carried out.

But after a few hundred years of throwing louches the people of Comines got tired of it, and the custom was abandoned. This year, however, some enterprising member of the Comines Rotary club thought it high time to disinter the old tradition, and the white bearded father of the municipalite solemnly mounted a platform guarded by two huge and grinning wooden dolls, and hurled the wooden louches into the assembled throng.

Not everyone in the crowd escaped injury, but, according to a French account, "You could see people boasting of the fact that they carried on their heads the marks of the blows received in this rough distribution."—Living Age.

Employment Aids Ignored

Juvenile unemployment centers, established in England by the co-operation of the ministeries of education and labor to assist and protect school boys and girls between the ages of fourteen and eighteen, seeking work, have not been entirely successful in Middlesex, England. The object was to enable the youths to better themselves while accepting the "dole" and were compelled to attend classes. The "dole" is the government unemployment stipend, but many of the younger generation, especially the girls, surrendered the "dole" rather than attend classes.

Everything Provided

An old Highland clergyman was lecturing a group of his people in the village hall, and again and again repeated the words: "There will be weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth."

A would-be wit at the back of the hall called out: "What about those that have nae teeth?"

The minister looked down over his glasses and said with great solemnity and complete conviction: "Teeth will be provided."

Allen Sings At Y. W. C. A.

Audience Shows Its Appreciation As He Goes Through Variety of Scotch and Hebridean Songs Accompanied By J. C. McClure.

The Y. W. C. A. gymnasium was filled with a most appreciative and impressed audience on Tuesday evening, when Charles Baldwin Allen, Scottish baritone, and J. Clarendon McClure of New York gave their song recital. The audience paid the highest possible compliment to the two artists—that of breathless silence that left the ticking of the wall-clock a disturbingly loud sound as the last notes of the songs died away and the listeners were loth to break the spell of the singing even to applaud. The evening's program left the audience with a sense of Scottish Highlands and Scottish tenderness and courage; of the mists and moods of the Hebrides felt and thought as the winds blow and the waves roll and men and women love or fancy; of the love of the rolling sea whose changing waves will be lit in memory's picture with the loves and lives of the Celtic people who were like unto us though they lived six hundred years ago; of the salt spray, the shifting scenes, the sturdiness and phantasy of the sea and the lovers thereof. Mr. Allen's rich and plastic baritone voice charmed his audience, but it was his singing that held his hearers breathless, while Mr. McClure is rare indeed as an accompanist, putting into his playing that atmosphere of the song that not only is a perfect support of the singer, but paints a vivid pictured background of the story sung. The audience were at once so occupied with the music that even the novelty of two men in Scottish costume was little noted, even while admired.

The first group was that of Scotch songs; the lilting, lovely "My Love, She's but a Lassie, Yet;" the lovely and tender, "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton;" the spirited and very human if a bit surprising, "Laird o'Cockpen;" the appealing, haunting, "Turn ye to me;" the romantic "Leezie Lindsay;" and the blood-thrilling Scottish national song, "Scots Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bled."

Then came the very unusual Hebridean Songs that have won their way by sheer beauty and sincerity, the far-visioned, throbbing "Morar Reaper's Song," the rhythmic, puleing sea song, "Loorgeen ohee;" the two beautiful love songs, "Where Sleepest Thou?" and "Winsome Mary;" the ethereal, exquisite song of "The Wild Swan," that the audience insisted on hearing a second time; and the intensely contrasting, bold and adventurous "Reiving (Pirate) Ship." In response to the continuing applause, Mr. Allen and Mr. McClure gave "The Pipes o' Gordon's Men," making an epic both tragic and tender and intensely heroic of the song as only a real Scotchman could.

The group of Gaelic Songs, many of which went back to the beginning of Celtic history, again held the closest thought and feeling of those who heard them: "Sing the Praises o' my Dearie" and "My Love to my Bride," with harp accompaniment antedating the bagpipes, held the heart of romance; "Put off and Row wi' Speed," an historic gem, singing of Queen Mary's Escape from Loch Levin Castle; and the three oldest songs, the "Heroic Ossianuic Chant;" the weird yet lovely "Seal Woman's Sea Joy," which the musicians generously repeated; and scolding "Bottachan" and his mocking flaunting wife. By request Mr. Allen sang as an encore "Hills o' Donegal," which is always listened to with real pleasure.

The program closed with a group of sea songs, "Sea Fever," by John Ireland; "Port o' Many Ships;" "Trade Winds" and "Mother Carey" (the last three by Keel). Mr. Allen and Mr. McClure sent their friends home with light-heartedness caught from the song of "Captain Mac."

Offer Council Zoning Speaker

The zoning committee of the common council consisting of the two Aldermen Sweeney, Alderman-at-large Dempsey and Alderman Ednger, chairman, discussed zoning at the Chamber of Commerce headquarters Tuesday evening with Secretary Coe, Arthur Burns, Arthur Connelly, Vincent A. Gorman, Dr. Day, Dr. Gates and Prof. Michael. Conditions as they relate to zoning in Kingston were talked over and in view of the lack of definite information as to just what zoning does the council committee was asked to report back to the council that the Chamber of Commerce offered to furnish a competent speaker along that line to talk on zoning at a regular meeting of the common council so that the aldermen might all be able to act more intelligently on any zoning proposal that might come up. The committee agreed so to report.

Tells of Being Captured by Horde of Cannibals

Sir Harry H. Johnston, explorer, linguist, diplomatist, who cut a large figure in the extension of British domination in Africa, tells in his new book, "The Story of My Life," many interesting stories of his experience with wild tribes of the Dark Continent. On a canoe trip up the Cross river, he relates how "a horde of excited people, armed with guns and spears, waded out into the river and compelled the canoe to stop. In fact dragged it summarily into shallow water. Three or four lusty savages pulled me out of the canoe, mounted me on the shoulders of the biggest and carried me off at a run to the town, where I was put in a hut with the door open. Here I had to submit to be stared at for many an hour by hundreds of inquisitive savages unaware as to the fate of my Krubois and Efik servants. Almost over my head, hanging from the smoke blackened rafters of the house, was a smoked human ham, black and bluish green. About a hundred skulls were ranged round the upper part of the clay walls in a ghastly frieze."

The explorer went through the form of making a treaty with the chiefs, but finding that "a great deal of palm wine had been drunk" cut short his visit after he had made presents of cloth and beads. The chief men of the town "insisted on giving a return present—a hundred yams and two sheep, and at parting an old chief or medicine man bestowed on me a necklace of human knuckle bones from his own neck."—New York World.

That Explained It

An old farmer and his wife drove to market one very wet day. Large pools of water had formed in the roadway between the farm and the town. On the return journey he met an old friend.

"And how are you today?" was the friendly greeting.

"Very well, thank you," answered the farmer.

"How is the wife?" continued the friend.

"Fine," said the farmer. "She's behind there"—jerking his thumb toward the back of the wagon.

"She's not there!" exclaimed the astonished friend.

The farmer turned and looked over his shoulder. Then he said coolly:

"Humph! That accounts for the splash."

Relieves Rheumatism

Musterole loosens up stiff joints and drives out pain. A clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard, it usually brings relief as soon as you start to rub it on.

It does all the good work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster, without the blister. Doctors and nurses often recommend its use.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

"On the Banks of the Wabash" with Mary Carr, Burr McIntosh, Mary MacLaren, Madge Evans, James Morrison and an all-star cast.

This wonderful picture based on Paul Dresser's song classic which has been adopted as the state song of Indiana, was shown to the Governors of all the States in annual conference at West Baden, Ind. The appeal of this epic of homeland gripped the audience of high executives and their guests, and the story of simple folk along the Wabash River was praised and commended by all.

The Picture with the most human appeal ever filmed and a smashing terrific climax!

INTERESTING DEMONSTRATION AT VAN WAGENEN STORE.

Oakley Selleck, "the man who forgot to grow old," is demonstrating the White sewing machine in the window of the L. B. Van Wagenen store on Wall street. Mr. Selleck, a veteran of the Civil War, having served as powder boy under Farragut, is an expert with a sewing machine, and some of the fancy work which he turns out seems almost impossible to the average person.

Tuesday Mr. Selleck spoke to the sewing class in the high school as well as several of the other classes. His talks are highly entertaining as well as educational and instructive.

ESTELLE WARD. INT.

In June, 1914, Esther Warshaw, a popular stenographer in the Illinois Assembly, disappeared from Springfield. The lawmakers, with whom she was popular, instituted a nation-wide search for her, and her case became as mysterious as the disappearance of Dorothy Arnold in New York City. During that ten years the girl, who desired independence, has been a stenographer, chorus girl, cabaret singer and paid entertainer. At Hollywood, Cal., she was found in a cabaret by a producer, who contracted with her at once to star in the pictures. A few days ago relatives who had given her up for dead saw a motion picture in which the star was Esther Ward, and instantly recognized the long-lost Esther Warshaw.

STANDING ROOM ONLY FOR PLAY "BAR HAVEN"

"Bar Haven" proved a big drawing card at the Fair Street Reformed Church Tuesday evening. The place was crowded to the doors and before 8 o'clock there was standing room only, and by the applause given, the audience was well pleased. Everyone of the participants in the play made an excellent showing, beginning yith Gerow Van Wyck as Captain Hopper, the old fisherman and the father of Spray Hopper, the girl who laughed at love but who found out that those who laugh last laugh best. This part was played by Mrs. Henry Eltinge. Ferris Davis was Hardy Stone whose ambition won for himself a high position also the love of Kate Wardell, the heroine of the play. Miss Eva Newkirk taking the part of Kate Wardell. Ernest Lefever was Leo Bradley, the New York lawyer in search of the heir to Wardell Manor and put this part over big. William Newkirk played the part of Gideon Graham the villain of the story and played it well. William Cornell as the Rev. John Wesley Wiggins showed just how it should be done.

Ralph Glendenning as Cy Bracket furnished a great deal of comedy and succeeded in landing Arbella for his wife but it was a close contest between him and the parson.

Miss Ruth Vredenburgh as Arbella Wortendyke kept Cy and the parson going all the time and proved herself handy with a gun. Mrs. Wardell of the Manor was played by Mrs. Walter Weeks. While this was a hard part to play, Mrs. Weeks put it over big with the help of her daughter, Florence Wardell. This part was played by Miss Hazel Dutton.

Parry's Reward.

Parry, the British explorer, received $25,000 from the British government for discovering the north magnetic pole.

Canfield Speaks Here Sunday

At Clinton Avenue M. E. Church—Other Events of Week for That Congregation.

Thursday evening the regular midweek service with a meeting of the official board at the close.

Saturday a basketball game between the young men of Clinton Avenue Methodist Church and a Sunday school class of Sloatsburg, N. Y., formerly taught by Clinton Avenue's present pastor. This game will be one of the big events of the spring. When the plans were completed for this game it was expected that Clinton Avenue's new court would be ready. This part of the plan has been changed but the local Y. M. C. A. has come to the rescue and offered their court for the big event. The activities will start at 7 p. m., when the Juniors of the Clinton Avenue Church will clash with the junior team of one of the local churches, and at 8 o'clock the regular Clinton Avenue team will face the Jolly Brothers of Sloatsburg. A collection will be taken.

Sunday morning being Palm Sunday, the pastor will preach a sermon appropriate for that great event. Sunday evening at 7:30 the Hon. Palmer Canfield, Jr., formerly mayor of Kingston and at present the prohibition director of New York state, will be the speaker. Mr. Canfield has not spoken upon the subject of law enforcement since taking over his present office.

Special services will be conducted in the church every afternoon and evening during holy week. The Epworth League has planned a special program for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings to start at 7:30. There will be a service each afternoon except Monday, consisting of Bible reading, song and prayer from 2:30 until 4. This leads up to Easter Sunday, which will be the big event for this church, when Bishop Luther B. Wilson will dedicate the new addition of which due notice will be given later.

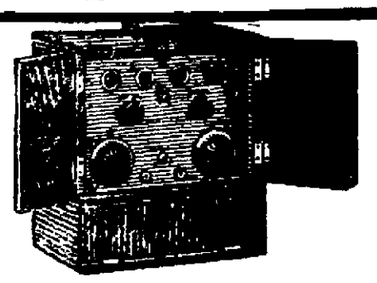
Buy Your Radio Set on Comparative Test



De Forest D-10 Reflex Radiophone—a 4-tube long distance receiver using indoor loop, with a reputation for the clearest reception of broadcast in existence. Operates either on self-contained dry batteries, making it a portable set, or on the usual combination of storage and dry batteries. Sold on a direct comparison basis with any other set made, regardless of price. Price of set with loop $150.00.

DON'T buy a radio set because it costs more than any other radio set made. Put a De Forest Reflex Radiophone in the same room with any other radio set no matter how much it costs, no matter how many tubes it uses, and see which one works best for you.

Test the sets, side by side on the number of stations they will bring in, on the clearness with which they receive distant stations, on their selectivity, on the beauty of sound, on the absence of extraneous noise, on the ease of operation.

After you have found how much more the De Forest will do for you than any other set made, you will be glad to learn that it costs only $150, that it needs no outdoor antenna—no ground—that it operates on either self-contained dry batteries or on the usual combination of storage and dry batteries, that you can carry it from room to room or work it in your car, that it is the easiest long distance set made to operate. And that its upkeep cost in tubes and batteries is notably low.

The plain fact is, when you have a De Forest Reflex you have all there is! Prove it to yourself!

TARIFF vs. FREE TRADE

By JOHN T. ADAMS.

Chairman of the Republican National Committee

One of the fundamental differences between the Republican and the Democratic parties is their attitude on the tariff.

The Republican party believes in a tariff which not only provides revenues, but which, in addition protects American industry from foreign competition. The Democratic party is a free trade, or tariff for revenue only, party.

A tariff for protection has been known as "the American policy" since the days of Henry Clay. The operation and the results of a tariff for protection fully justify this characterization. With three exceptions, and those of short duration, the United States has had the benefits of a protective tariff since the Republican party came into control of the government over 60 years ago.

During that period has occurred the industrial development of the United States. Since the Civil war, America has become the greatest industrial producing nation in the world.

With the development of her industries and their prosperity came, inevitably, the development of transportation, agriculture and business, for the products of the factories had to be moved, the wage earners had to be fed, and the goods produced had to be sold.

It is not an exaggeration to state that America's position as the foremost, most prosperous nation of the world is due, in a very large measure, to the policy and operation of a protective tariff during the last 60 years.

The greatest beneficiary of such a tariff is the wage earner. America has a higher level of wages and a higher standard of living than any other nation in the world. This is made possible by the policy of protection.

The fact that wages are higher today than at any previous time in the history of American industry is mainly due to the Fordney-McCumber tariff. Not only has that tariff protected the American wage earner, but it has provided more revenue than any other American tariff ever enacted. Its operations have refuted every charge made against it during the period of its debate, and have given another example of the wisdom of the policy of Republican protection.

Edinger Tells Zoning Costs

Chairman of Council Committee Finds That It Has Ranged in Other Cities of This Class From $500 to $10,000—Difficulties Here.

Editor, The Freeman:

Zoning is the application of common sense and fairness to the public regulations governing the use of private real estate. It is a painstaking, honest effort to provide each district or neighborhood, as nearly as practicable, with just such protection and just such liberty as are sensible in that particular district. It avoids the error of trying to apply exactly the same building regulations to every part of a city or town regardless of whether it is a suburban residence section, or a factory district, or a business and financial center. It fosters civic spirit by creating confidence in the justice and stability of the protection afforded.

Zoning gives everyone who lives or does business in a community a chance for the reasonable enjoyment of his rights. At the same time it protects him from unreasonable injury by neighbors who would seek private gain at his expense.

Zoning regulations differ in different districts according to the determined uses of the land for residence, business, or manufacturing, and according to the advisable heights and ground areas.

But these differing regulations are the same for all districts of the same type. They treat all men alike.

Do we need zoning? Well that depends. Should a city keep its gas range in the parlor and its piano in the kitchen? That is what many an American city permits its householders to do for it.

We know what to think of a household in which an undisciplined daughter makes fudge in the parlor, in which her sister leaves soiled clothes soaking in the bath tub, while father throws his muddy shoes on the polished stairs, and little Johnny makes beautiful mud pies on the front steps.

Yet many American cities do the same sort of thing when they allow stores to crowd in at random among private dwellings, and factories and public garages to come elbowing in among neat retail stores or well-kept apartment houses.

Cities do no better when they allow office buildings so tall and bulky and closely crowded that the lower floors not only become too dark and unsatisfactory for human use but for that reason fail to earn a fair cash return to the individual investor.

It is this stupid, wasteful jumble which zoning will prevent and gradually correct. We must remember, however, that while zoning is a very important part of city planning, it should go hand in hand with other essential features of a well-equipped city. Alone it is no universal cure for all municipal ills, but as part of a larger program it pays the city and citizens a quicker return than any other form of civic improvement.

A zoning ordinance consists of one or more maps dividing the city into different kinds of districts; and a statement of methods of regulation to be employed in each district in regard to the use to which property may be put, the height and size of buildings, and the amount of space to be left vacant, with adequate provisions for enforcement. In the process of drafting a tentative ordinance, it is important, by means of full public discussion, to be sure that the ordinance is an application of common sense and fairness and will provide each district, as nearly as practicable with just such protection and just such liberty as are sensible in that particular district. It is essential likewise to be sure that public opinion, as a whole will support it.

I have prepared a few figures that might interest you—Gloversville, N. Y., population, 23,000; cost of zoning, $3,721.51. New Rochelle, population, 25,000; cost of zoning, $500. Binghamton, N. Y., population, 75,000; cost of zoning, $6,000. Lincoln, Neb., population, 22,000; cost of zoning, $5,700. Madison, Wis., population, 26,000; cost of zoning, $7,900. It is probable that New Rochelle used purely local "talent" to accomplish zoning. In fact I find that a number of cities in the west zoned entirely with local talent. Then again other cities with no larger population than that of Kingston have paid all the way from $8,000 to $10,000. Kingston because of its peculiar layout will be difficult to zone, being what the Yankees call a "Dumb Bell City," meaning no doubt its big head, small waist and big tail. A friend once said to me, "Your city reminds me of a fat man who would not wear suspenders and always insisted on wearing a vest two sizes to small for him. Consequently the vest would not stay down and the trousers would not stay up." In the words of Kipling: "Pants is pants and vests is vests, and never the twain shall meet."

U. G. EDINGER,
Chairman of Zoning Committee of the Common Council.

A Clipper's Sails

Another sight worth taking a voyage for is that of the sails by moonlight. Our course was "south and by east, half south," so that we seemed bound for the full moon as she rolled up over our wavering horizon. Then I used to go forward to the bowsprit and look back. Our ship was a clipper, with every rag set, stunsails, skyscrapers, and all; nor was it easy to believe that such a wonder could be built of canvas as that white many-storied pile of cloud that stooped over me or drew back as we rose and fell with the waves.—Lowell.

Vendetta

A vendetta is a blood-feud; the practice of the nearest kin executing vengeance on the murderer of a relative. In Corsica the vendetta is regarded as a duty incumbent on the relatives of the murdered man, and, failing to reach the murderer, they take vengeance on his relatives. The practice exists also, though to a more limited extent, in Sicily, Sardinia and Calabria, as well as among the Druses, Circassians and Arabs.

Dawes Committee Reports Plan

—110,000,000 gold marks; 1927-28
—500,000,000 gold marks; 1928-29
—1,250,000,000 gold marks."

The report went on to say that these figures might be subject to modification, under certain conditions, if Germany's recuperation is not sufficiently rapid to justify them.

The report points out that Germany should be taxed as heavily as any of the allied powers. The report calls for "commensurate taxation" in Germany.

The committee proposed either a new bank of issue be created or the Reichsbank be reorganized along the lines suggested for the establishing of a new bank of issue. This bank would be chartered for 50 years and would play an important part in stabilizing currency.

During the 50 years of the charter the proposed bank would have sole authority to issue German currency. In the meantime all the existing currency would be withdrawn from circulation. The new notes would be secured by a normal legal reserve of 33 1-3 per cent and by other liquid assets. Its reserve would be largely in the form of deposits in foreign banks.

For the time being the new bank-notes would not be redeemable in gold but they might be placed upon such a basis later on. The new bank would serve as a "bankers' bank" re-discounting safe, short time bills, establishing the official rate of discount, acting for other banks in the transfer of bank credits, making short term commercial loans and discounts and effecting transfers. It would receive deposits from the public.

The proposed bank would be authorized to make short term loans to the government but these loans would be strictly limited and very carefully safeguarded.

The German government would participate in the profits of the bank but it would be free of all government control or interference. All treaty funds collected in Germany could be deposited in the bank to the credit of a special account and creditor nations would be allowed to withdraw them only under conditions which would not disturb the German exchange market.

Part of the capital stock of the new bank would be subscribed in Germany; part abroad. It would be administered by a German president, a German board of directors and a general board consisting of seven German members and one each of the foreign nationals—British, French, Italian, Belgian, American, Dutch and Swiss.

The general board is given wide powers. One foreign member will be known as the commissioner and he will be responsible for seeing there is no infringement of provisions relative to the issuance of currency or the maintenance of a reserve.

It was suggested, that in order to secure the banks independence that an issue department under the direction of the commissioner, which would have charge of issue and the reserve, should be established abroad, but such a guarantee was considered political and was rejected by the committee.

The report began by saying that solution of the problem confronting it implied restoration of Germany's credit both at home and abroad. After saying that military aspects were beyond the committee's jurisdiction, the report continued:

Military aspects contingent upon sanctions and guarantees, if political guarantees and penalties intended to insure the execution of the plan proposed, are considered desirable, they fall outside the committee's jurisdiction. Questions of military occupation also are not within our terms of reference. It is our duty, however, to point out clearly that our forecasts are based upon the assumption that economic activity will be unhampered and not affected by any foreign organization other than the controls herein provided. Consequently our plan is based upon the assumption that existing measures in so far as they hamper that activity will be withdrawn or sufficiently modified as soon as Germany has put into execution the plan recommended, and that they will not be reimposed except in case of flagrant failure to fulfill the conditions accepted by common agreement. In case of such failure it is plainly for the creditor government, acting with the consciousness of joint trusteeship for the financial interests of themselves and others, who will have advanced money on the lines of the plan, then to determine the nature of the sanctions to be applied and the method of their rapid and effective application. In saying this we wish to add at once that, if the economic system now in operation in occupied territory is modified we are unanimously of the opinion that a settlement of reparations must be reinforced by adequate, productive securities. We propose, for this purpose, a system of control which we believe will be effective and at the same time such as not to impede the return of financial stability."

The committee dealt first with the budget; then with the German railways which, at present, are contributing nothing to the budget. The report said that the budget requires certain relief from immediate charges for treaty purposes (reparations payment) and must be balanced permanently; not temporarily.

Confidence must be restored in Germany to attract capital (domestic and external) for investment, the report continued, adding that there must be a settlement assuring both Germany and outside nations that "for a considerable period neither finances nor foreign relations will be endangered by renewed disputes." In other words the committee wants the present arrangement to be permanent with no further reparations squabbling in the future.

"As we shall see, our scheme needs both foreign and internal subscriptions to the bank of issue," said the report. "And in particular an external loan as an essential condition enabling and assuring reparations payments. We fully recognize the justice of maintaining the principles in the treaty that payments should increase with what may prove to increase her (Germany's) future capacity."

The committee said it was not competent to fix a definite number of annuities that Germany should pay.

The present index of Germany's prosperity, as now in use, is held inadequate and should be altered. The Allies are to judge by this index how much they will be able to share in Germany's increased prosperity.

The plan suggests that six sets of statistics for the years of 1926-27-28-29 covering railway traffic, growth of population, foreign trade, consumption of the tobacco, etc., budget expenditure and consumption of coal should be considered as showing the proportion increases to be added to Germany's treaty payments.

The committee does not consider that Germany's need for an external loan is similar to that of Austria and Hungary, where it was devoted specifically to meeting ordinary deficits, but is required here to establish the new bank and to prevent interruption of deliveries in kind which will be continued as usual.

It is believed that the ordinary budget of 1924-25 will balance but the committee proposes an increase of existing taxation if it will not.

Californian Is Named Reclamation Director.

ELWOOD MEAD.

Elwood Mead, of California, noted reclamation engineer, has been appointed Director of Reclamation of the Department of the Interior by President Coolidge, who ousted David W. Davis, a Harding appointee. His action was expected by some in Washington to foreshadow the resignation of Dr. Hubert Work as Secretary of the Interior.

MILLIONAIRE WEDS ACTRESS IN PARIS.

RUBYE DE REMER.

Benjamin Throop, millionaire Scranton, Pa., coal and iron magnate, called "the world's most persistent lover," has been married in Paris to Rubye De Remer, screen actress, once called "America's loveliest woman." Immediately after the wedding the guests sang "I've Got You at Last," written for the occasion, because Throop had, in the last ten years, proposed to Miss De Remer thirteen times, in New York, California, Paris, Monte Carlo, Egypt and London.

MEN WHO FIGURE IN NEWS OF THE DAY.

Below: GEN. JAN C. SMUTS & SEN. J.W. HARREYD.

Because President Coolidge ousted David W. Davis, a Harding appointee, and named Elwood Mead, of California, a noted reclamation engineer, to head the Reclamation Bureau in the Interior Department, many in Washington believed Dr. Hubert Work would resign as Secretary of the Interior. U. S. Senator John W. Harreld, Republican, of Oklahoma, testified before the Senate Committee investigating the Department of Justice that ex-Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty's former law partner, John Todd, had been counsel for the Miller interests and that land he said was fraudulently held is still held by the Miller heirs. The Cabinet of the Union of South Africa, headed by General Christian Smuts, has resigned. The Supreme Court of the United States has ruled that Sergeant Roland R. Porthier, indicted for the murder of Major A. P. Cronkite at Camp Lewis, Wash., on October 23, must be returned to that State for trial. It is understood that Captain Robert Rosenbluth, whose friends call him "the American Dreyfus," also must go on trial. Major Cronkite was killed during a target shoot on a practice march, and the cause of death was reported as "accidental shooting." Porthier is said later to have confessed the killing of Major Cronkite at Captain Rosenbluth's instigation, but later repudiated the confession.

Many Varieties of Opals; Where They Are Found

There are many varieties of opals, the varieties are divided into a few main groups. The Cacholong is an opaque white or bluish-white variety named after the river Cach in Bokhara. It has the opalescent glimmer of mother-of-pearl. It is associated with chalcedony and by reason of its porous quality sticks queerly to any tongue that touches it. It is esteemed by the superstitious as the stone of friendship, sincerity, truth.

The float stone is porous and fibrous and floats on water. It is esteemed as a stone that sanctions pledges. Lovers join hands over this stone as it floats in a vessel of water and pledge their vows with great solemnity, it being held that misfortune will dog the footsteps of the faithless.

The girasol, the Mexican fire opal, evanescent and variable, glows of hyacinth and yellow. This is the opal of Scott's "Anne of Geierstein."

Hyalite. A transparent or glassy opal otherwise called Muller's glass. In appearance like clear gum arabic. One of the eye-stones to which old writers attributed magic therapeutic qualities.

Hydrophane. Porous and translucent, developing opalescent tints and gradations of rare delicacy when it has been a little time in water. Otherwise of an opaque white or yellow, unattractive. Known in parts of the United States as magic stone.

Menilite. Found in slate near Paris. Known as liver opal, as it is held to have talismanic virtues in affections of that overworked organ. A concretionary opal, liver-colored.

Opal jasper. Jasper-like resinous dark red, a ferruginous variety identified by the credulous as the opal of beautiful wisdom.

Rose opal. Found at Quincy, France. Exquisitely soft, rose-colored stone, known as the opal of childhood or of the baby cupid.

Semi-opal. A silicified wood-opal of waxy luster, transparent to opaque. It is found in various colors—white, brown, gray, red, blue, green. It has the appearance of petrified wood. Esteemed as a tree-growing charm or forest opal.—Frank Morton in Adventure Magazine.

The Patient Postman

Old Peter, the mailman, footsore and weary, had reached the end of his route and was congratulating himself upon having finished in such good time.

"Mr. Mailman, Mr. Mailman," came a voice from the last house on the street which could only be reached by climbing a hill of about 300 steps.

"I wonder what she wants?" thought Peter, as he started to climb the steps. "She may have an important letter she wants mailed. More steps, gosh! This sure is hard on an old man, but it is my duty to see what she wants?"

At last he reached the top of the hill and stood puffing before the woman.

"Did you have to take an examination to get in the post office?" she said.

"Why, certainly, I had to pass a civil service examination," said Peter.

"Oh, that's fine. I guess you are pretty bright then," said she. "Will you tell me how to spell Schenectady?"—Rome Sentinel.

Great Seal of England

The great seal of England, of which Lord Haldane again becomes custodian, has had several strange adventures. Besides being stolen and twice thrown into rivers, it was once buried to escape being burned.

In 1812 Lord Chancellor Eldon's house took fire, and he promptly rushed away with the great seal, which he buried in the flower garden. On returning, he records in his diary, he was "so enchanted with the pretty sight of the maids, who had turned out of their beds and were handing buckets of water to the fire engine, all in their shifts, and so alarmed for the safety of Lady Eldon," that next morning he could not remember in which flower bed he had buried the seal.

"You never saw," adds Lord Eldon, "anything so ridiculous as the whole family down the walks digging with bits of stick until we found it."—Manchester Guardian.

Wanted to Try It

Mother (helping herself to sauce)—You won't like this, dear. It's parsley sauce.

Bessie—Oh, let me have some. I know I should like it.

"Why, dear, you haven't tasted it."

"No; but I've read about it in the Bible."

"Where?"

"I've been reading about the man who was 'sick of the parsley,' and I want to try it."

Dangerous Handicap

"But your wrist is nicely bandaged," urged his mother. "It won't prevent you from attending classes."

Still the boy held back. Dad took a hand at this point.

"Now speak up, son," commanded his father. "Let's have the real reason. Why don't you want to go to school with a sprained wrist?"

SAFE MUST STAND MANY HARD TESTS

Modern Strongbox Gets Rough Treatment.

There must be no doubt about a safe. Therefore a safe that is being tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories has to undergo some pretty severe usage. If it does not weaken, says Mr. Harry Chase Brearley in a Symbol of Safety, it wins a label of utter trustworthiness.

First the safe is submitted to the "explosion test." Inside are magazines and loose papers and a recording thermometer. A photograph is taken of them. Then the doors are closed, and the safe is enveloped in flames. In less than three minutes the temperature exceeds a thousand degrees; and in 15 minutes it has reached seventeen hundred degrees. Those are extreme conflagration conditions.

For the second test the safe is placed in a furnace that consists of a box of thick masonry and that is heated with four rows of blast burners. After 20 minutes an observer looking through a peep hole at the back of the furnace can see the large sheet of steel that forms the back of the safe is beginning to show signs of distortion. That is only natural. Thirty minutes; tiny spurts of flame are issuing from joints in the safe from the generation of gases within the insulation. It is indicative of good design that they can escape without doing damage. Forty minutes, and the steel knob of the combination lock is brilliant red; one hour, and the entire surface of the safe is brilliant red. If the safe has been submitted for the highest classification it is subjected to an inferno of ever-increasing intensity for three hours longer; but at the end of the four hours the heat inside as indicated by a recording instrument connected with an external switchboard must not be sufficient to injure the most delicate papers on the shelves.

The "drop test" is even more spectacular. Toward the end of an hour's heating, which the safe must undergo for this test, eight men in overalls stand by at their stations like trained gun crews. Blocks and tackles are all set to open the wall door of the furnace and to roll out the bottom truck on which the red hot safe rests. The engineer at the instruments takes a last reading of temperatures, jots them down and puts his mouth to the speaking tube. "Ready!" he calls.

Two asbestos-gloved men disconnect the recording instruments and withdraw them white hot from the furnace wall holes.

"Ten seconds!" shouts an engineer. "Five!"

A man grasps a lever.

"Go!"

The flames go out with a pop. There is a thud as a man rams a timber against the door prop. The heavy door opens. Workmen, crouching to protect their faces from the heat, quickly hook the wheeled truck and draw it forth; then they raise the safe high in air until it is plumb above a massive concrete block set flush with the flooring of the yard and covered with a heap of loose bricks. The safe is dropped and, whizzing down from the height of a fourth-floor window, lands with a crash.

On a second day the test is repeated with the safe turned upside down. After that it is carefully examined and dissected, and, if it has done all that was expected of it, it wins its rating.—Youth's Companion.

General Cass an Explorer

Gen. Lewis Cass of Michigan was an explorer as well as an eminent soldier and statesman. He organized an expedition at Detroit and led it up the Detroit river and through the lakes to the Mississippi in the spring and summer of 1820 for the purpose of exploring the river to its ultimate source. General Cass reached the Mississippi too late in the season to penetrate its source and his expedition rested in the lake in Minnesota, which now bears his name. Having several men of scientific attainments, the expedition was distinguished by its attention to the peculiar characteristics of the Indian tribes and the botany, mineralogy and meteorology of the regions traversed. Cass lake is a fine body of transparent water about 18 miles in length.—Detroit News.

Singles

Two Scotchmen, in the habit of crossing a river on a ferry boat, took it in turn to pay the two fares.

Apparently they lost count, for one morning Jock said to Sandy: "Who's turn is it the day? I dinna think it's your turn."

"An' I dinna think it's yours," said Sandy.

"Well," said Jock, "we'll each pay oor ain."

"Aw richt," replied Sandy; "but look here, Jock, dinna tak' returns, tak' singles. We micht meet someone on the ither side."

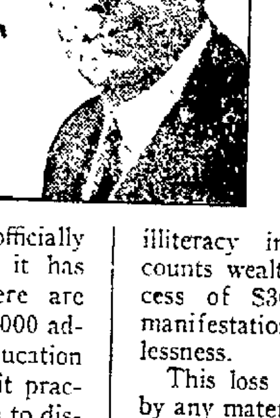
U. S., RICHEST OF NATIONS, LEADS ALL IN ILLITERAC[Y]

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

"The United States has the highest percentage of illiteracy among enlightened nations in the world."

One finds this amazing statement in a report issued by the National Education Association after research of illiteracy conditions throughout the civilized world. The percentage of illiteracy in the United States is given as 6.0; among other nations it is France 4.9; England and Wales, 1.8; Scotland 1.6; Sweden and Norway 1.0; Netherlands .9; Denmark .2.



The number of absolute illiterates is officially given as 5,000,000, but it has been estimated that there are from 5,000,000 to 15,000,000 additional persons whose education is so limited as to make it practically impossible for them to discharge intelligently their duties as citizens in the democracy. No less than 24.9 per cent of our young men are so limited in their command of the English language that they are unable to read newspapers or write letters.

The late Franklin K. Lan[e] while Secretary of the Interior estimated that our country is lo[s]ing $825,000,000 a year through illiteracy. He stated that 10 p[er] cent of our country folk cann[ot] read or write, thus cutting the[m] off from the bene[fits] of bulletins o[n] agriculture, far[m] publications, newspapers, etc.

According t[o] educational autho[r]ities illiteracy at th[e] present rate of de[crease] will co[n]tinue to be a na[tional] problem i[n] the United Stat[es] for the next 10 years.

Such widespread illiteracy in a nation which counts wealth at a figure in excess of $300,000,000,000 is a manifestation of public thriftlessness.

This loss cannot be computed by any material standard, and as to its moral and mental aspects one is reminded of Addison's words: "The philosopher, the saint, the hero, the wise, the good, the great man, very often lies concealed in a plebeian who[m] proper education might have disinterred and brought to life."

SAUGERTIES.

Edward Taylor of Taylor's fish market has purchased a new Ford delivery truck from E. Carman Styles of the Van Burkirk agency.

Plans are under way for the annual dance of the R. A. Snyder Fire Company. It will be held the early part of July in Columbus Hall, Saugerties. The orchestra has not been decided upon as yet.

A meeting of the Robert A. Snyder Fire Company of Saugreties was held Tuesday evening, April 8, in Firemen's Hall, about one hundred members being present. A serenade was given John A. Martin of Ulster avenue after the business of the meeting was transacted. A good old fashioned sauerkraut supper was enjoyed and was proclaimed to be complete in every detail. Solos were rendered during the evening by Harry Desmond and singing by the quartet received hearty applause. The meeting then adjourned until Tuesday, May 6th. Walter J. Miller, James R. Higley and Charles J. Mullen of Kingston were guests of honor at the banquet.

Bennett Speaks At School 7

After the regular business meeting of the No. 7, P.-T. A., a very interesting discourse was given by Professor Bennett, of the New Paltz Normal School. In the beginning Mr. Bennett spoke of the benefits derived from an association where parents and teachers meet occasionally. As a result of these meetings, the mothers and teachers may do the best for the children's welfare.

The principal thought of the discourse was to bring out the necessity of knowing the true value of one's own children. He pointed out that the best investment that parents can make for their children today is not to give them more money, nor better clothes, nor other material things, but rather let them invest 100 per cent of their true parental love, sacrifice, deep sympathy and true friendship. He added that if parents will make this investment for the children, their own return will be cheerfulness, fun and real good times, such as none but their own children are capable of giving.

Emphasis was made of the importance of doing the best that we can for all of the boys and girls in our community, for as members of our city these children, too, might well be considered our very own, and they surely are of much worth to everyone of us.

New Paltz Home Bureau.

Owing to the inclement weather the meeting of the New Paltz Home Bureau scheduled for April 1, was postponed and the meeting is planned to be held at the Grange Hall, April 15, at 8 p. m. Assistant City Judge Robert G. Groves of Kingston will deliver a lecture on civics, his topic to be "Town and Village Government." As the address of Mr. Groves will be a most interesting one, it is hoped by the Home Bureau that there will be a large attendance.

Health Clinic Here Friday

At the request of the Ulster County Committee on Prevention of Tuberculosis, Dr. F. W. Laidlaw district state health commissioner, has arranged with the state health department to hold consultation clinics for diseases of the lungs in Ulster county. Two of these clinics have been held, one at New Paltz and one at Marlborough which was held today.

He'd Say It Was

A man traveling in a train that had made several abrupt stops and sudden jerks, became a bit anxious. There had been numerous accidents on the line of late, so he had been told, and there was cause for fear. Calling the porter aside, he said: "George, is this train safe?"

"Safe as any, suh."

George's grin extended from ear to ear.

"Block system, suh? Why, boss, we have de greatest block system in de world. Ten miles back we was blocked by a mule. Just now we were blocked by a cow, and I reckon when we gets farther South we'll be blocked by an alligator. Block system, suh? Well, I'll say it is!"

A Little Fable

Destiny took a man from an obscure position and gave him a $5,000 job. He became very arrogant. A $25,000 position becoming vacant in the same office, Destiny gave it to another. Whereat the first man railed bitterly, and for once Destiny condescended to reply to mortal.

"I had you in line," quoth Destiny, "for big things, and was watching to see how you would act. If you swelled up over a $5,000 job what would you have done with a $25,000 position?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

His Mistake

A magnificently attired washerwoman drove up in her limousine and delivered to a young professional man his weekly wash. He examined it, and then said, timidly:

"Excuse me, madam, but I'm afraid you've made a mistake. You've kept my shirt and, instead, you've brought me these very dilapidated old handkerchiefs."

The washerwoman looked into the parcel angrily.

"Pshaw!" she sniffed. "Them ain't handkerchiefs—them's your shirts."

A Salesman

A young salesman, who claimed that a good salesman could make a living anywhere, tried it out in Rome. But he was soon back in America.

"What was the matter, Frank?" asked a friend. "Couldn't you pick up the language?"

"Oh, I had plenty of that, but the situation was too complicated for me. I tried to sell a pink shirt to a Fascist and he took it for an attack on his politics."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Couldn't

"What do you do when you're kissed?"

"I yell."

"Well, will you yell if I kiss you?"

"Hu-uh! I'm still hoarse from last night."—Sun Dial.

EVEN MAGAZINE EDITORS DON'T ALL LIVE IN NEW YORK!

Martha Van Rensselaer was recently named as one of the twelve greatest American women. Born of parents who desired above all things to educate their children well, Miss Van Rensselaer became a teacher almost without conscious choice. As county school commissioner she added an interest in the life problems of rural women. A job had become a career.

In 1900 she was appointed by Cornell university for development of extension work with rural women. A department of home economics in the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell with Miss Van Rensselaer in charge followed. The department has become a "professional school," a small college in itself.

Mr. Hoover appointed Miss Van Rensselaer chief of the home conservation division of the United States food administration. The American Home Economics association made her its president. A woman's magazine sought her out to be "home-making editor."

With all personality boiled out in the telling, that is the story of one woman who had only a school teacher's position in an "up-state" town as a starting point.

What made Miss Van Rensselaer a woman to be listed in "Who's Who?" In what way has she differed from thousands of teachers who, in their own embittered phrase, "Never got anywhere?"

Isn't it fairly easy to read between the lines?

Martha Van Rensselaer, the girl, used to the full the gift her family had to convey. They loved education. Their daughter made education her life work.

She developed early the ability to manage people. Women county school commissioners were not so common in Atlantic coast states a quarter of a century ago but that office-holding is significant.

She was intellectually alert. Not many people were seeing the differences between life in city and country as problems that demanded help from public schools. Still fewer had a practical program. Martha Van Rensselaer evolved both.

She was feminine. She directed—one may easily imagine—all her fine woman instincts, not into antagonism to men, as so many intellectual women have done, but into a constructive service for other women and girls.

"I would develop more opportunities for women outside the cities," she writes. "There is much work undone and many women overtaxed in farm life because home equipment, social life and remuneration are not enough to hold the average girl at the seat of production."

Logical Way

"Jane," said the mistress, bent upon a test of her new maid's fitness, "how would you tell an old goose from a young one?"

"By the teeth, mum," replied Jane.

"Why, you stupid!" exclaimed the mistress, "a goose hasn't teeth."

"No, mum," agreed Jane, "but I have."
